AMEND Senate Bill No. 7001***

House Bill No. 7001

By deleting the following language from § 3-6-203(b)(1) in Section 25 of the printed bill:

If after such hearing the commission determines that there is no probable cause, the commission may order the complainant to reimburse the alleged violator for any reasonable costs and reasonable attorney fees the alleged violator has incurred.

And by substituting instead the following language:

If after such hearing the commission determines that there is no probable cause, the commission shall order the complainant to reimburse the alleged violator for any reasonable attorney fees and reasonable costs, including but not limited to travel expenses and lost wages, that the alleged violator has incurred.
